

Mexico – Third Best Climate in the World

Each year, International Living compiles a list of the best places in the world to retire. Countries are rated according to their cost of living, infrastructure, and climate.

In its recent Special Report on the World’s Best Climates, International Living shares the list of the top 10 countries. Mexico was ranked #3! Below we have provided an exact transcription of the section on Mexico:

#3 Mexico

Mexico’s climate varies depending on altitude, winds, and the Pacific Ocean currents. The coastal region experiences a tropical climate, especially along the Yucatan Peninsula and the lower areas of southern Mexico, while areas with an elevation higher than 900 meters experience a temperate climate.

The average rainfall is 40 inches. During summer and autumn, the Gulf of Mexico, and the Pacific and Caribbean coasts are subject to hurricanes. Some parts of the Baja and northern Mexico receive hardly any rain at all—any time of year.

(...)

To read the entire publication, please visit InternationalLiving.com, and its Special Report: “The World’s Best Climates”.